VELEDICTORY REMARKS

MR. CHAIRMAN: Hon. Members, the Winter Session of the august House concludes today. I am not happy to share with you that the House functioned much below its potential. I urge all of you to reflect and introspect, collectively and individually, if this Session could have been different and better. I don't want to speak elaborately on the course of this Session, as that would lead me to make a very critical view. Statistics regarding various aspects of functioning of the House, during the Session, will be released to media for wider dissemination. I wish you all a Merry Christmas, a Happy, Healthy, and Prosperous English New Year and also realization of what has happened is wrong and we should all work towards constructive and positive atmosphere for the larger interest of the country. My greetings for Makar Sankranti, Pongal, and other functions. Rulings, regulations, procedure, precedent, decency, and decorum have to be maintained.

(The National Song, “Vande Mataram” was played.)

The House adjourned sine die.

P. C. MODY,
Secretary-General.
